On April 9, VICE published a set of photographs of Khmer Rouge victims that artist Matt Loughrey had manipulated beyond colorization.

The story did not meet the editorial standards of VICE and has been removed. In the process of investigating that story, the VICE editorial team subsequently found additional photos in this article that had also been manipulated beyond colorization. As a result, we have removed this story. We apologize for the error.

We are deeply sorry for any pain this has caused and sincerely apologize to the families of the victims and the communities in Cambodia. We have begun outreach in private with community groups and individuals to address this.

We continue to strive for the highest level of rigour when it comes to these checks and balances in our stories and will redouble these efforts to ensure this does not happen again.